

Contributing to open-source as a Designer starting out can be intimidating and confusing based on the level of features you see already prepared with little or no documentation for designers

Perception of designers not needed in open-source, but just make it work ideology

