It's quite hard to find a single designer who contribute to open-source efficiently.

Contributing to open-source as a Designer starting out can be intimidating and confusing based on the level of features you see already prepared with little or no documentation for designers